DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Gauron (U.S. Patent No. 4,902,180) in view of Kann (U.S. Patent No. 2,415,695). With respect to claims 1 and 8, Gauron discloses an insert nut having a shape defined by a plurality of sidewalls (78, 90, 92, for example), and at least one circumferentially extending groove (84, 86, 88) along a longitudinal dimension of the insert nut. The plurality of sidewalls are configured to provide a plurality of gaps (see figure 17) between the sidewalls of the insert nut and a surface of an installation hole of the carrier. Plastic is injectable into the plurality of gaps (via 94, 96) and into the at least one groove. Gauron also discloses a method of mounting the insert nut in an insert hole (figure 17). Gauron does not show the insert nut to have a polygonal shape.

3. Kann teaches an insert nut (11) of polygonal shape in order to secure the nut against turning (column 3, line 30). The insert nut forms a plurality of gaps between its sidewalls and the carrier, where the gaps extend along the entire length of the insert nut. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Gauron as taught by Kann in order to secure the nut against turning.

Art Unit: 3677

4. With respect to claims 2, 3, 9, and 10, Kann discloses the insert nut can have any of polygonal shapes, including a hexagon or pentagon (column 3, lines 2-4).
5. With respect to claims 4, 5, 7, 11, 12, and 14, Gauron discloses the longitudinal dimension of the insert nut corresponds to a thickness of the carrier, and the groove is circular (figures 13, 14 and 17). Gauron also shows a plurality of grooves along the longitudinal dimension.
6. With respect to claims 6 and 13, neither Gauron nor Kann disclose the groove to be in the shape of a pentagon. However, Kann discloses that polygonal shapes may be used to secure against turning within the hole. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to make the grooves in the shape of pentagon in order to provide resistance to torque as the bolt is fastened.
7. With respect to claims 15 and 18, Gauron, modified as taught by Kann, teaches each gap to be of uniform size and provides an inlet port for plastic injection
8. With respect to claims 16 and 19, Kann teaches the polygonal shape i sized to be substantially inscribed in the installation hole of the carrier (14 of Kann)
9. With respect to claims 17 and 20, the combination of Gauron and Kan teaches each gap is defined by adjacent vertices (of Kann) and a segment of the installation hole between the vertices.

Response to Arguments

10. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 and 8 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. All claims are now rejected by the combination of

Art Unit: 3677

Gauron in view of Kann. Examiner has removed the Quaney reference from the rejection.

Examiner believes Kann cures all of applicant's argued deficiencies of the previous rejection.
